

Student Research Resources Available at BYU

BYU Graduate Studies (<http://www.byu.edu/gradstudies/>)

BYU Graduate Studies is the office that is responsible for the education of BYU's graduate students. The office dedicates a special section of its website to fellowships and grants for graduate students. Make sure you become familiar with these financial opportunities during your first year in your Masters Program.

Office of Research and Creative Activities (<http://orca.byu.edu>)

The Office of Research and Creative Activities exists to support the university community in their efforts to encourage and support research, creative expression, and other expressions of academic scholarship.

Kevin and Debra Rollins Center for eBusiness (<http://ebusiness.byu.edu/>)

The Kevin and Debra Rollins Center was established in April 2000 to help Brigham Young University and the Marriott School stay abreast of how technology is affecting people and organizations. Its mission is to become a leader in e-business through teaching, research, and innovation by fostering mutually beneficial relations—locally and globally—among students, faculty, and business.

Global Management Center (<http://marriottschool.byu.edu/gmc/>)

The Centers for International Business Education and Research (CIBERs) were created under the Omnibus Trade and Competitive Act of 1988 to increase and promote the nation's capacity for international understanding and economic enterprise. The CIBER program links the manpower and information need of U.S. business with the international education, language training, and research capacities of universities across the U.S.
